

Nitazenes and naloxone

What are nitazenes?

Nitazenes are very strong and dangerous synthetic opioids. They have been found in the drug supply across the country.

What are the risks?

Nitazenes are continuing to cause overdoses and deaths.

What to do in an emergency?

If you think someone is overdosing, call 999 for an ambulance immediately.

Give the person naloxone.

Make sure you have enough naloxone - at least two kits.

You may need to give more doses of naloxone to stop someone from overdosing.

Know the signs of overdose:

Loss of consciousness

Shallow or no breathing

Snoring or loud rasping

Blue or grey lips or fingertips

Get free naloxone kits and training from your local service or visit change-grow-live.org/naloxone for more information.